Empowering your mobile employees to work anywhere

 The introduction of flexible working can transform your business performance and your balance sheet. It can help you boost productivity, retain talented people and reduce operational costs. Put simply, flexible working means your employees can work anywhere.

Work anywhere simply and securely

Successful flexible working means giving your employees straightforward, trouble-free access to corporate information and applications wherever they are – at home, travelling and visiting customers – without compromising your data security.

Using BT MobileXpress, your people can connect to your network simply and securely anywhere in the world, via fixed or wireless networks. BT MobileXpress creates a virtual work environment for employees while protecting your corporate information and applications with strong, multi-layered security, even if someone is connecting from an Internet café or home network.

BT MobileXpress ensures that your business remains fully operational – even when employees can't travel to the office.

Business as usual, whatever the weather

BT MobileXpress satisfies both the individual user's need for simplicity and connectivity and the organisation's demand for the most robust security. There are three core components to BT MobileXpress, plus an extensive set of management tools that help you make the most from your investment:

BT MobileXpress User Interface – connect to your corporate network and applications through a single, intuitive interface installed as a small application to PCs or Smart Devices. Access, authentication and security are rolled into a single seamless connection process, making it simple for the user to get online and start work. This straightforward connection process reduces user problems and consequently the number of calls to your helpdesk.

BT MobileXpress Security – our range of security modules allow your users to connect safely to your private network from untrusted devices such as home PCs and in public Wi-Fi environments. Consequently, in times of travel disruption, public health crises or civil emergencies, you can quickly and easily extend flexible working to everyone who needs it.

BT MobileXpress Availability – we provide end-users with access in more than 160 countries. BT MobileXpress automatically chooses the best connection available, and manages all the complexity of logging on, so that your mobile employees have the freedom to work anywhere without delay.

BT MobileXpress will also manage your own corporate access, such as your private, corporate wireless network or via 3G from an extended list of available mobile network providers.

We can even provide the option to be 'always on', so that your employees need log on only once in the working day, even if the connection is disrupted or the user decides to change network.

Complete control

With the BT MobileXpress Toolkit, a set of web-based management tools, your IT department can manage, monitor and control your total remote access usage. You can dynamically review how individuals, separate departments or teams are using the service and make sure that you are getting the results you want from your investment.

A BT MobileXpress provided connection is billed centrally to your organisation (at corporate rates), so users do not have to worry about reclaiming access costs through expenses and you have a clear picture of total expenditure.

BT MobileXpress also provides comprehensive performance data about the end-user's experience. This helps to improve support and troubleshooting. Management information can also help you to refine access options for users and control or reduce the costs of remote access for your organisation.

The BT MobileXpress Desktop Management solution gives you complete visibility and control of all your distributed devices and the software that is installed on them. This allows you to manage your PC and mobile device estate, making sure security policies are enforced and up-to-date.

Empowering your mobile employees to work anywhere

BT MobileXpress – sharpening your competitive edge

The benefits of mobile working extend to the individual employee, the team and the whole organisation:

Increased productivity and competitiveness – freed from their desks, your people can spend more time with customers or work while travelling, and so enhance overall productivity, responsiveness and your competitive edge. With access to corporate information, applications and services whenever they need it, wherever they are, your people can work more confidently and effectively.

Greater corporate resilience – in times of disruption to public services or other crises that make it difficult for people to travel to the office, employees can carry on working with secure, direct access to their files, applications and to each other.

Simple, affordable access – users need no longer worry about which connection to use and how to pay for it. BT MobileXpress chooses the best connection available and then prompts the user for security information before connecting them through to your own network.

Reduced IT expenditure – with BT MobileXpress management information, you have more visibility and control of IT overheads and the cost of supporting mobile users. A range of access options and the ability to prioritise connections mean that users are not tempted to use personal means to connect to the network, so improving security and reducing expense claims.

Secure access to corporate data and applications – with a range of security solutions that we tailor to your business, as well as specific measures to protect laptops, BT MobileXpress provides you with an appropriately high level of corporate security.

Commercial flexibility – our pricing structure gives you the opportunity to introduce BT MobileXpress easily and with the knowledge that you can quickly increase capacity whenever needed.
